National Speakers Association Wins Prestigious Best Technical Production Award at ILEA ESPRIT Awards Gala

Seattle, WA — The National Speakers Association (NSA) is thrilled to announce that it has been honored with the award for Best Technical Production at the prestigious International Live Events Association (ILEA) ESPRIT Awards Gala, held on August 14, 2024, in Seattle, WA. This recognition highlights NSA's unwavering commitment to excellence and innovation in the live events industry.

The Esprit Awards, presented annually by ILEA, recognize and award the most outstanding live events in the industry each year. The 2024 Esprit Awards featured 16 categories celebrating all aspects of live events, from planning to production, from design to execution. As the most inclusive and prestigious international awards program for professionals in the live events industry, the Esprit Awards stand as a hallmark of excellence.

This award is a testament to the outstanding work of NSA's Candice York, Director of Events, and NSA member Sylvie di Giusto, CSP, GSF, who were instrumental in producing the ground-breaking Opening Keynote at Influence 2023. Their creativity, technical expertise, and dedication have set new benchmarks for event production, earning them this well-deserved accolade.

NSA remains dedicated to pushing the boundaries of live event production, and this award serves as an inspiration to continue delivering high-quality, impactful experiences.
